You have probably been receiving notifications lately of updated privacy controls and terms and conditions from service providers, such as Google. These updated policies are in response to Europe's new data-privacy regulation (known as GDPR) that goes into effect on May 25th. Trice Imaging is proud to announce that we are ready and already implementing our new policies.

This new regulation affects anyone collecting data within Europe, although Trice Imaging will be extending the same level of security and privacy to all customers, regardless of geographical location.
